

Our United Airlines logo | Quick reference guide

Go to brand.united.com for guidelines, downloads, and updates.

Our logos and use cases

- Most widely-used logo
- Used when United is understood as an airline through context, creative or environments

- For use when United is not immediately understood as an airline
- Used in international instances outside of airport environments (some exceptions include the ANZ lockup and Wrexham jerseys)
- Often seen in sponsorship materials and international OOH

Clear space

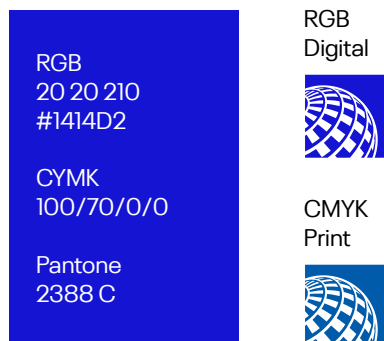

The clear space rule is to ensure that no other elements are placed too close to the logo.

Minimum clear space is calculated by using half of the symbol height and width.

Color

United blue is our core logo color. Here are the exact color values for digital and print applications.

Color variants and usage

Primary logo
Used on white or light background.

White reverse logo
Used only when background is United blue.

Primary logo
Used on dark backgrounds.

Black logo
Used only when printing is limited to black and white.

Star Alliance logo lockup

Our star alliance logo lockup directly links to the United brand to the Star Alliance network. It should be used for all customer-facing communications. (Star Alliance is not needed in co-op materials where the other brands are not Star partners).

STAR ALLIANCE

STAR ALLIANCE

There are two versions of the United star alliance logo. Use the correct version depending on its application.

The examples on the right show when to use logo 2 or the 1-color logo.

Logo 2
For white, black, dark, light and photography backgrounds

1-color
For small applications such as on merchandising/pens and packaging

Reminder: Any projects or communications that reflect the United brand should be reviewed in advance by the United brand team. Email brand@united.com with your questions and comments.
